Plant roses in a sunny location in soil that has been spaded to a depth of 15 to 18 inches to which a heavy dressing of cow manure has been added. Give additional applications of manure annually and keep the soil moist throughout the summer by flood irrigation. Roses require a rich soil and an abundance of soil moisture.

BROADLEAF EVERGREENS

Our landscape architect has recommended and planted this class of shrubs, that ordinarily hold their leaves all winter for the last 20 years. They have proven to be quite hardy even though during extremely cold winters leaves may fall before new ones start in the spring. Broadleaf shrubs are increasing in demand to help make more beautiful the attractive homes being built at this time.

MAHONIA - Often called Holly Leaf Oregon Grape. The spring leaf color is a waxy green that often changes to reddish and brownish hues after the freezing weather sets in. Mahonia has clusters of yellow flowers early in the spring that are followed in summer by blue berries.

9 to 12 inch plants, balled and burlapped - $2.00

EUONYMOUS PATENS - A shrub that can be used in many landscape plantings. It has white flowers blooming in August, followed by green berries with violet marking. Large leathery green leaves.

Potted plants for hedges - 35¢ each
